

Disabled Student Services (DSS) Offices

Students With Disabilities

The University would require putting up the above facility in order to be able to cater for students with disabilities. This office is dedicated to ensuring that students with disabilities have the tools, support services, and resources that allow equal access and reasonable accommodations.

Disabled Student Services (DSS) Materials

Students with disabilities require physical access to classrooms, libraries, dining areas – basically, everywhere a student would want to go. Plans for access should be included in building and landscape architecture, including ramps and doors with automatic openers, countertops at various heights in student service areas, and dorm rooms with accessible bathrooms. The condition of these facilities should be continuously monitored, as something as small as a broken button or handle can mean all the difference to a person with a physical limitation.

Here are some other important factors to consider:

- Modified elevators
- Curb cuts along sidewalks
- Lowered water fountains
- Lowered toilets, sinks, and other restroom features
