Prof. Stephen Kiama Gitahi, PhD
Vice-Chancellor, University of Nairobi

e-LEARNING MATERIALS

Prof Kiama said a lot has been put in place by the institution of learning to continue uninterrupted.

He said the students have been provided with e-learning materials such as bundles.

“This intervention brought life back to the university, as faculty and students began to engage. As we were gaining momentum, the challenge of cost of data emerged and threatened to roll back our gains,” he said, adding that no student who was scheduled to graduate this year should fail to do so because of Covid-19.

He said learning was made possible due to the indomitable spirit of staff and students.

“I applaud and salute you all for your gallant efforts. When our history will be written, I have no doubt that a paragraph or perhaps a chapter will be reserved for the resilience you have exhibited in the Covid-19 time,” he said.

On Tuesday, the Ministry of Education issued a directive on the reopening of learning institutions in the country.

Kiama said in line with the government directives, he has instructed the Deans and Directors working closely with the respective Principals to prepare to open in a phased manner.
